ABSTRACT

This directory of allied health programs in junior colleges was compiled to provide a comprehensive source of allied health training programs in two-year colleges and to provide data on which to establish national, regional, State, and local priorities for health manpower education. It may also serve as a supplementary reference for guidance counselors and for professional organizations. Information was obtained from a questionnaire sent to all the institutions (1,038) listed in the "1970 Junior College Directory" and returned by 1,030. Of these institutions, 708 offered, or planned to offer, at least one course in allied health education. The Directory is organized into several inventories, which constitute cross-references of the information obtained: (1) programs by State, in which each institution has all its programs listed--basic occupational education, short-term and future programs; (2) programs by type of allied health specialty; these, in turn, have been divided according to location by State and institutions; (3) future programs arranged by type of program; and (4) short-term programs by type of allied health specialty. Types of programs inventoried are: administrative, biomedical engineering and instrumentation, emergency, environmental control, laboratory, medical care assistants, medical records and office, mental health and psychiatric, miscellaneous, nursing, optical and visual care, radiclogical, and rehabilitation. INTRODUCTION

This directory of allied health programs in community junior colleges was compiled by the American Association of Junior Colleges for the Division of Allied Health Manpower, Bureau of Health Manpower Education, National Institutes of Health, DHEW under Contract No. NIH 70-4125. (A similar directory for allied health programs in four-year colleges and universities is under development by the Association of Schools of Allied Health Professions.)

Both the Department and the educational community (public and private) recognized a need for more accurate and timely information about allied health educational and training activities. The effectiveness of public policies and programs designed to increase allied health manpower in critical areas is dependent upon a comprehensive knowledge of current educational and training activities. Data available prior to the compilation of inventories in this directory was generally collected by "spot" surveys, or by surveys that were selective (geographically or by health specialties). While highly informative for their kind, they did not provide a comprehensive compendium of programs in two-year colleges.

Purposes and Uses of the Directory

The primary purposes for compiling the inventories in the directory were to provide a comprehensive source of allied health training programs in two-year colleges and to provide data on which to establish national, regional, State, and local priorities for health manpower education. Health manpower planners, educators, and public officials at all levels of government who are concerned about allied health education have not previously had a single source of information about locations of programs, enrollments and enrollment capacities. The directory provides such information on which to base decisions, for example, about whether to establish new programs, where to establish them, or what modifications of existing programs could be made to meet allied health manpower training needs.

The directory may also serve as a supplementary reference for academic and career guidance counselors at every level of education and for professional organizations in health and related fields.

Data Gathering Methods and Organization

Information for the Directory was obtained from a questionnaire sent to 1,038 community colleges in October of 1970—all the institutions listed in the 1970 Junior College Directory published by the American Association of Junior Colleges. Questionnaires were completed and returned by 1,030 colleges. Examination of the returned questionnaires revealed that 708 institutions offered at least one program in allied health education, or were planning to initiate such a program between 1971 and 1975.

The questionnaire was divided into four parts as follows:

Part I—general information about the college: name, location, chief administrative head (e.g., president), name and position of person(s) chiefly responsible for the administration and/or development of allied health program(s) in the institution.

Part II—characteristics of active programs for basic occupational education. These programs were defined as those which prepare students to work in a specific profession, occupation, or vocation at the entry level for that occupation. Admission to the program does not require previous training, skill, or recognition in that occupation. The program leads to a certificate, degree, or other completion award granted by the college, and is at least one academic year (eight months) in duration.

Part III—characteristics of active programs of less than eight months, but at least thirty-six clock hours in duration—short-term programs. Among these might be aide-level education* advanced training, continuing education, and refresher or retraining programs. In addition to these are some professional and clinical courses enabling health workers to qualify for professional certification and licensure.

Part IV—characteristics of basic occupational education programs (as in Part II) which are in the process of development or are planned for development by 1975—future programs.

The Directory is organized into several inventories, all of which constitute cross-references of information obtained in the questionnaires.

1. An inventory of programs by State. Each institution will have all its programs listed—basic occupational education, short-term, and future programs.
2. An inventory of programs by type of allied health specialty, e.g., all dental hygiene programs grouped under one heading, all nursing programs grouped together, etc. These, in turn, have been divided in accordance with location by State and institutions.
3. An inventory of future programs arranged by type of programs.
4. An inventory of short-term programs by type of allied health specialty.

The appendix additionally features a number of supplementary tabulations.

Types of Programs Inventoried

A major difficulty in collecting data for a directory such as this is a lack of consensus as to what is—or is not—an allied health program. Moreover, the absence of standardized terminology further complicates the task of data-gathering.

Questionnaire returns from colleges were carefully reviewed to determine if the programs described would qualify for inclusion in this document. To facilitate processing data, programs were grouped under one of 14 major categories. Each of these, in turn, was further sub-divided into two or more minor categories.

Choice of titles for the minor categories was made on the basis of most common usage or because it was most descriptive of how the practitioner actually performs in the field. Thus, the sub-category "licensed practical nurse" will list all programs preparing practical nurses—including those in California and Texas where the term "licensed vocational nurse" is preferred.

Similarly, the sub-category "inhalation therapy" will feature program titles such as "cardio-pulmonary" or "respiratory" therapist. However, the integrity of program titles submitted by individual colleges has been preserved as much as possible. To conserve space, descriptors such as "two-year degree program in ..." or "associate degree program in ..." have been deleted.

Following is a brief description of the 14 major categories, with a listing of the minor categories as they appear in each of the 4 inventories and supplementary tabulations throughout the Directory. In addition to these, some representative program titles submitted by questionnaire respondents have been noted.

I. Administrative Services. These are supportive, managerial and administrative services in institutions and facilities where health care is rendered. Two minor categories:

1. Health administrative assistant—representative college program titles are ward clerk, hospital unit manager, health facilities management.
2. Nursing home administrator—representative program titles are long-term care administration, health care management.

II. Biomedical Engineering and Instrumentation Services. Persons who service, maintain, operate, and/or repair medical equipment and instruments that are designed to supplement or support body functions, and which are used in diagnostic and/or therapeutic procedures, are prepared in programs of this group. Three minor categories:

1. Biomedical engineering technician—a representative program title is electro-medical technology.
2. Electro-encephalography technician.
3. Electro-encephalography—Electrocardiology technician.

III. Dental Services. Occupations in these services prepare persons to assist dentists in varieties of dental practice activities and/or to fabricate dental prosthetic and orthotic devices. Four minor categories:

1. Dental assistant
2. Dental equipment repair technician
3. Dental hygienist
4. Dental laboratory technician

IV. Emergency Services. Programs in this group prepare students to administer medical emergency care, transport the sick and injured, and assis professionals in emergency and intensive care units of hospitals. Tw minor categories:

1. Medical emergency aide—representative program titles are emergency vehicle attendant, ambulance attendant
2. Medical emergency technician

V. Environmental Control Services. Occupational tasks in these service range from pollution control and surveillance of food, water, and ai resources to monitoring environments and activities where ionizing radiation is in use. Three minor categories are:

1. Environmental science aide—representative program titles ar solid waste management, environmental health assistant
2. Environmental science technician—representative program titl are pollution abatement technology, air and water control technology, environmental health engineer
3. Radiological health technician—a representative program title i radiation safety

VI. Laboratory Services. Career programs in this group include a variety of specialties and sub-specialties which require knowledge and skill in clinical laboratory procedures. Five minor categories are:

1. Cytotechnologist
2. Histology/cytology technician
3. Medical laboratory assistant—a representative program title i certified laboratory assistant
4. Medical laboratory technician
5. Medical technologist

VII. Medical Care Assistants. Under this category are programs which prepare personnel to provide assistance to clinical specialists (orthopedists, pediatricians, surgeons). Eight minor categories are:

1. Cardiovascular technician
2. Dialysis technician—a representative program title is nephrology technician
3. Inhalation therapist—representative program titles are respiratory therapy inhalation therapy technology
4. Intravenous technician
5. Orthopedic assistant
6. Physician's assistant
7. Podiatric assistant

VIII. Medical Records and Office Services. Programs in this group train health workers to prepare or maintain health records and to provide clerical support. The group includes secretarial assistants who work under the direct jurisdiction of physicians and dentists (in their offices) as well as technicians who analyze, code, file, and/or transcribe medical records in health institutions. Three minor categories are:

1. Medical office assistant—representative program titles are administrative and/or clinical medical assisting, medical assisting, office services, medical and dental
2. Medical records technician
3. Medical secretary

IX. Mental Health and Psychiatric Services. Programs in this group prepare practitioners to assist professional personnel in the care of patients with mental or psychiatric disorders in agencies rendering out- or in-patient care. Three minor categories are:

1. Mental health assistant
2. Mental retardation specialist
3. Psychiatric aide

X. Miscellaneous Services. In this category are programs that prepare personnel to function as assistants in a variety of supportive services such as dietary, institutional pharmacy, geriatric, biomedical photography, and veterinary services. Five minor categories are:

1. Dietary technician
2. Geriatric assistant
3. Medical photographer
4. Pharmacy technician
5. Veterinary technician

XI. Nursing Services. These are professional nursing and supportive services. Five minor categories are:

1. Home health aide
2. Licensed practical nurse
3. Nursing aide
4. Registered nurse
5. Surgical technician

XII. Optical and Visual Care Services. Under this group are programs for personnel who assist ophthalmologists and/or optometrists with specialized procedures. In addition to these are careers for personnel who assist with corrective eye exercises, who fill prescriptions for corrective lenses or corrective contact lenses. Two minor categories are:

1. Optician—representative program titles are ophthalmic dispensing, ophthalmic optics, opticianry
2. Vision care technician—representative program titles are orthoptists, ophthalmological assistant, optometric technician

XIII. Radiological Services. These occupations and careers prepare personnel who expose, develop, and critique diagnostic X-ray films, and who assist in therapeutic procedures requiring radio-isotopes or radiation. Three minor categories are:

1. Nuclear medicine technician
2. Radiation therapy technician
3. Radiologic technician—a representative program title is X-ray technician

XIV. Rehabilitation Services. These are careers in which personnel assis professionals in the administration of therapeutic and rehabilitative procedures designed to restore patients to optimum activity levels. Six minor categories are:

1. Occupational therapy assistant
2. Physical/occupational therapy assistant
3. Physical therapy assistant
4. Prosthetic/orthotic technician
5. Recreational therapy technician
6. Speech and hearing technician

The primary source authority in determining whether a reported program was indeed an allied health program was the Division of Allied Health Manpower and consultant groups from the Environmental Protection Agency, Division of Nursing, Division of Dental Health, and the National Institute of Mental Health. For instance, the NIMH distinguishes the psychiatric aide as one who is trained specifically to work in an institutional setting where psychiatric care is rendered in contrast to the mental health worker who works with psychiatrists and psychologists in clinics or offices.

Many programs reported to be allied health programs were not included in the Directory because no specific health training was indicated in the program descriptions. Samples of these are child care training, funeral directing, community work, housekeeping, social services, and food service management which did not specify dietetic emphasis or content.

Responses to the Survey

As earlier noted, 1,038 questionnaires were sent to two-year institutions, of which 1,030 were completed and returned. A total of 708* schools indicated their engagement (or their intention to engage) in one or more allied health occupational education programs. Total programs of each type are summarized in Tables A, B, and C which follow below. Table D is a summary of total programs in each of the major and minor categories as described in the preceding section. Table E is a summary of short-term programs according to level of instruction.

TABLE A indicates the allied health programs of the active basic occupational education type ranging from zero to fifteen in number, and the number of colleges offering each figure. For example, at the beginning of the scale, 79 colleges reported no active program; the colleges are listed in the Directory because they may be contemplating such programs in the future, or they may offer short-term programs. At the end of the scale one college offers as many as 15 active basic occupational education programs.

* Note: A number of programs (and perhaps institutions) will not appear in the inventories because they did not qualify as allied health programs.

TABLE B indicates the number of future basic occupational programs which are currently under development or which are under consideration for development between now and 1975. For example, 366 colleges are not considering any new programs for the future, while at least two colleges (at the end of the scale) have reported plans for as many as ten new allied health programs.

TABLE C indicates the number of colleges reporting none, one, o more short-term programs, ranging through 12 programs. For example 507 institutions reported no short-term programs, while one college (a the end of the scale) reported that it offers as many as 12 such programs

TABLE D illustrates the specific numbers of current active basi occupational education programs and the anticipated future growth o these programs in each of the major, and minor, categories as describe in the preceding section.

Among the active programs, the nursing services category represent the largest percentage (40.9 per cent) of all allied health education in two year colleges, but demonstrates the smallest anticipated growth rate (21 pe cent) as compared with others. At the farthest end of the scale, emergenc services offers the fewest number of programs (less than 0.1 per cent), ye demonstrates the largest percentage of anticipated growth (600 per cent) by 1975.

It would be premature to glean startling significances or to mak hasty assumptions about educational and/or occupational trends on th basis of these figures alone, since they are affected by a variety of importan factors—not the least of which is the fact that all data in this Directory were promulgated long after nursing service programs might have passe their peak growth rates, and during which time health services were no necessarily characterized by increasing specialization. Indeed, figures i Table D are offered only as information, as is true of the entire Directory

TABLE E summarizes short-term courses according to level of instruction in specialty categories. For example, under "Aide-Level Education," nursing service exhibits the greatest number of programs, while dental auxiliary, pharmacy, and rehabilitation services have the fewest programs.

The questionnaire listed five levels of instruction (aide-level, advanced training, continuing education, retraining/refresher, and professional), within which respondents were asked to place programs. A sixth category (other) was provided for respondents who believed their short-term programs to be something else; these, however, were not specified. Hence, the major heading "Other" in the table below.

A "no response" entry means that the respondent failed to identify the specialty category of instruction, i.e., dental services, laboratory services, etc. These programs have been tallied and constitute a portion of the total short-term programs appearing in Table C above.

"Nota Bene"

Although the major purposes for compiling this Directory have been previously noted, it is hoped that it will serve to focus attention on some major inconsistencies in allied health occupation program development. One of these is program title, and another is program description. Both of these are at least partially culpable for what the American Association of Junior Colleges hopes will be few errors. This is the first directory of its kind in the fluid, dynamic, and ever-changing world of allied health occupational education. With the experience gained in collating data for these inventories, it is hoped that subsequent similar efforts will manifest greater uniformity and accuracy.

The task of achieving greater uniformity and accuracy in program title and description is necessarily multi-faceted. It can be achieved only if there is a general concensus that: (a) it is desirable to do so; and (b) it is predicated on a rational and logical development of terminology and definition rather than on unilateral (and perhaps arbitrary) determinations. Both AAJC and the Division of Allied Health Manpower, therefore, urgently request and invite users and readers of this publication to actively participate with them in the promulgation of greater uniformity and accuracy in program title and description for subsequent directories.

If you believe programs have been erroneously categorized or unjustifiably eliminated from the current directory, please address your explanations to: Allied Health Occupation Directory, American Association of Junior Colleges, One Dupont Circle, N.W., Suite 410, Washington, D.C. 20036.

The inclusion of institutions and programs in this Directory does not constitute endorsement of them by the American Association of Junior Colleges or the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

GLOSSARY OF TERMS AND ABBREVIATIONS

AAIT American Association for Inhalation Therapy

AAMA American Association of Medical Assistants

AAO American Academy of Orthopedics

AAP American Academy of Pediatrics

ABO American Board of Opticianry

ACCREDITATION A process of voluntary self-evaluation and appraisal by a professional association.

ADA American Dental Association

ADAA American Dental Assistants Association

ADHA American Dental Hygienist Association

ADVANCED TRAINING PROGRAM A course(s) of instruction designed to provide persons who are, or have been engaged, in a particular health occupation with additional knowledge and skill and academic or professional recognition in that occupation.

AIDE As generally employed in allied health fields, a person who obtains limited skills in a health specialty after two to six weeks (or more) training on-the-job, or in a high school, or technical/vocational institute, or associate degree granting institution.

AIDE-LEVEL EDUCATION PROGRAM A course(s) of instruction that might be characterized as "in-service," "on-the-job," or "apprentice" training; usually offered by, and conducted in, hospitals—or in high schools, technical/vocational institutes, or associate degree-granting institutions.

AMA American Medical Association

AMRA American Medical Record Association

AMT Association of Medical Technologists

AOA American Optometric Association

AORN Association of Operating Room Nurses

AOTA American Occupational Therapy Association

APTA American Physical Therapy Association

ASCP American Society of Clinical Pathologists

ASMT American Society of Medical Technologists

ASRT American Society of Radiologic Technologists

ASSISTANT As generally employed in allied health fields, a special in specific details of a health specialty after one or more years a technical institute, high school, or associate degree-granti institution.

BASIC OCCUPATIONAL EDUCATION PROGRAM A progra of education or training designed to prepare students to wo in a specific profession, occupation, or vocation at the entry le for that occupation. The program does not require previo training, skill, or recognition in that occupation prior to adm sion into the program. The program leads to a certificate, degr or other completion award granted by the college, and is at le one academic year (eight months) in duration.

CLINICAL EXPERIENCE (PRACTICUM) Knowledge and sk gained through supervised field practice in any appropria agency or institution affiliated with the college for this purpo that is required for (a) licensure, or (b) certification or registr tion by a professional organization, or (c) accreditation of given curriculum by a state or national accrediting organizatio
The practicum is always considered a part of the professional technical component of the curriculum.

CLINICAL (PHYSICIAN) SPECIALIST SERVICES Direct an specific services rendered by personnel to physicians who,
many cases, have been their trainers.

FUTURE PROGRAM A basic occupational education program th had not admitted students, that was in the process of develo ment, or which the college was planning to develop by or befo 1975. (The questionnaire eliciting this information was di tributed, completed, and returned during the last three mont of 1970.)

INVENTORY OF FUTURE PROGRAMS

This inventory lists only basic occupational education programs which colleges are in the process of developing or plan to develop by 1975.

Readers are reminded that the questionnaire, from which all data was derived, was distributed during October of 1970. At that time, many colleges indicated their plans or intentions to begin programs in 1971. Readers are therefore cautioned not to assume that these programs were activated, since no follow-up was undertaken on the questionnaire information originally submitted.

Conversely, many colleges were uncertain as to when they could or would implement programs; for this reason, many entries in this column appear as follows: 19—.

APPENDIX

Following are five summary tabulations on information contained in the preceding inventories. The tabulations are all arranged in accordance with the major occupational categories.

Current Enrollment in Active Basic Occupational Education Programs

It will be noted that many, many programs seem not to enroll part-time students, but these may not be "true" figures since many respondents left this question blank.

Enrollment by Class and Full-time Enrollment Range

The full-time national enrollment figures appearing in column two of the first tabulation (above) are broken out into first-, second-, and third-year classes. The accuracy of these breakouts is somewhat suspect since many questionnaire respondents did not submit this information specifically. In addition, the arrangement of figures by class does not distinguish among programs that had only begun in 1970 (the year the questionnaire was distributed).

For these reasons, entries for second-year class appear as "zeros."

Figures in the full-time enrollment range column heading "Number of Programs" do not necessarily tally with the total number of programs in that category since, again, respondents may not have separated their full-time and part-time enrollments. Naturally, the computer read these as "zeros."

For example, there art actually seven programs under the category heading "Health Administrative Assistant," but only six are reflected in the full-time enrollment range. Specificaly, these may be interpreted as two programs featuring a full-time enrollment range of one to four students; two programs enroll five to nine students on a full-time basis. One program enrolls 20 to 29 full-time students; and one program enrolls 40 to 49 full-time students.

The seventh program in this category seems not to have reported its enrollment either by class or by full-time versus part-time breakouts. This kind of discrepancy may appear throughout the tabulation.

Graduate Summary

This tabulation is reasonably self-explanatory. However, the reader is reminded that where "zeros" appear, some respondents may not have submitted information for these entries. Similarly, where figures do appear for each year, they could conceivably be lower than they should be, since respondents may not have completed the entries, or respondents did not have the information available to them.

Future Programs

This tabulation reflects a potential growth of programs in the various occupational categories and a projection of the years when they might be initiated. Additionally, respondents were asked to project enrollment figures. These are summarized for all the years under the column heading "Capacity."

The reader is reminded that some respondents did not indicate the years some of their programs might be offered. Hence, the total number of future programs in each of the categories may be fewer than were actually submitted, since the computer did not read the "unknown" entry.

Course Length

This tabulation summarizes the course lengths in months for all active basic occupational education programs in each occupation category.

For example, 22 programs in dental hygiene reported a total course length of 18 months; one program reported 19 months, 11 programs reported 20 months, etc.
